

Biographical Sketch

Name: Maria M. Wegner-Johnson

Job Title: Economist

Home Office: Tulsa District (SWT), Tulsa, Oklahoma

Education:

M.S. Environmental Science, 2009, Oklahoma State University

B.S. Environmental Policy, 2001, University of Tulsa

Professional Experience:

Ms. Wegner-Johnson began her Federal civil service career in 2001 at the Tulsa District Corps of Engineers in the Planning, Environmental and Regulatory Division. After receiving her bachelor's degree from the University of Tulsa in Environmental Policy, she was offered a full time position as an Economist. Ms. Wegner-Johnson was responsible for evaluating the economic benefits and costs of water resource related projects. Additionally, she was charged with performing social impact analysis and carrying out public involvement activities for the division. In September 2004, Ms. Wegner-Johnson left the Corps of Engineers to pursue international travel with her husband while working part time from home for a prominent Architecture-Engineer firm. After three years of travel, she returned to Federal service as an Economist in the Tulsa District Planning and Environmental Division, Planning Branch. Shortly thereafter, she assumed the duties as the senior economist before formally being selected to the position in July 2008. Ms. Wegner-Johnson has served two details at HQUSACE on the Southwestern Division Regional Integration Team. Ms. Wegner-Johnson also performs duties as a study manager, responsible for the execution of Planning Assistance to States and other planning studies. Her special interest in connecting the human environment with the physical environment leads her to focus on the human dimensions of planning.

Additional Information:

Outside of work Ms. Wegner-Johnson is active as a member of the TU Lettermen's Association Board and a Deacon at church. She enjoys spending time and traveling with her three year old son, Amari, and husband, Kevin, and reading a wide variety of books.
